AGRICORE UNITED PROVIDES SEED FOR WESTERN CANADIAN FOODGRAINS BANK GROWING PROJECTS

WINNIPEG, MANITOBA—(April 30, 2007) — Agricore United (TSX:AU) is pleased to announce its support for the Canadian Foodgrains Bank (CFGB) for the year 2007. The company's annual commitment of $50,000 in seed has been fully utilized by growing projects across Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. In total, 16 growing projects will use Agricore United's donated seed this summer to grow crops which will support Canadian Foodgrains Bank's mission to end hunger.

"Agricore United's donation of seed relies on the generosity of Canadian farmers to grow the product and donate it to this worthy cause," says Wayne Drul, Chair, Agricore United. "No matter how challenging the environment has been, our staff and customers make this happen, year after year."

Seed provided includes wheat, barley, canola, flax or any other mainstream crop that is handled, subject to availability, with the exception of identity preserved crops. The CFGB has more than 80 growing projects across western Canada.

"Agricore United continues to be a reliable and valued supporter of the many growing projects in western Canada," says Jim Cornelius, Executive Director, CFGB. "Through the commitment of our many supporters, the Foodgrains Bank is able to respond to hunger in a significant way. Each year, millions of people benefit from our hunger-related programming overseas. Agricore United's annual $50,000 seed donation has made a difference for thousands of people over the last several years, and we value their continued commitment to helping people build better lives for themselves and their children."
